-Making Digital Art Real-

My name is didierpi, a Dutch digital artist dedicated to creating art that inspires and raises awareness about the profound effects of climate change. My work is characterized by modern techniques and visually compelling contrasts, reflecting the simultaneous beauty and disruption of our world. With a background in design, woodworking, nightscape photography, Photoshop, emerging technologies, music (re)mixing, and turntablism, I integrate these elements seamlessly into my art.

Concept and Themes

At the heart of my artistic practice is the desire to highlight the urgent need for climate action. My art is vibrant with a dark undertone, mirroring the contrast between the beauty of nature and the threats it faces. By exploring themes of environmental conservation and sustainability, I aim to evoke a sense of responsibility and hope.

Artistic Process

I employ a pioneering application of a textured, high-resolution print technique traditionally reserved for reproductions of great painters like Veronese, Van Gogh, and Vermeer. By creating original digital artworks specifically for this printer, I push the boundaries of its conventional use, blending technology with tradition. The result is art that has the roots and lineage from the past, but made into something radically new.

Each piece, from digital conception to relief printing, is created with minimal ecological impact. I use sustainable processes and transportation, and more than double compensate for any remaining footprint.

Artistic Goals

My goal is to inspire others to join in the collective effort to transform Earth into a more beautiful and equitable place. I aim to cultivate a deep understanding of the underlying concepts in my art, countering the fleeting nature often associated with purely digital images on social media. Through vibrant surreal expressions and dynamic surfaces, I invite viewers to engage in a more enduring and contemplative experience.

Future

Looking forward, I will continue exploring innovative techniques and sustainable practices in my art. I invite you to engage with my work and reflect on the beauty and fragility of our world. Together, we can inspire change and make a positive impact on the planet!
